

Pastor Thomas Wang was born into a Christian family in Fremont, California. After moving up and down the west coast, his family settled back in Taiwan where Pastor Thomas was immersed in a bilingual education. He was a wild kid who was baptized at 10 but did not see a life change until he was 16. The youth group he belonged to had only four kids who came from Christian homes. Everyone else was the first Christian in their family. That experience showed Pastor Thomas the need for evangelism and discipleship in youth ministry as well as the possibility that young people can set an example in matters of faith.

God called Pastor Thomas into full-time ministry for the Chinese people when he was 17. His collegiate experience reinforced that calling and prepared him for ministry in an American cultural context. After graduation from college, he worked in Delaware with children with learning disabilities before attending Trinity Evangelical Divinity School. There he not only received his Masters of Divinity training but also met his wife, Kate. It was love at first sight, almost.

Pastor Thomas served in Atlanta Chinese Christian Church for almost 15 years. He's been their Youth Director, Chinese Assistant Pastor, English Pastor, and Lead Pastor for the independent Ekklesia Atlanta Christian Fellowship Church. He has a passion for serving in a Chinese cultural context and is seeking God's guidance for the next ministry.

When he's not playing with his three children, Pastor Thomas enjoys movies, playing board games, reading history, studying military history, and watching team sports. He also enjoys being silly with his family whenever possible. Pastor Thomas, his beautiful wife Kate, and their children Abigail, Rachel, and Caleb are currently living in Atlanta.
